the recent major attacks on free speech by big companies are really concerning. but I have little doubt that they will actually have the opposite result. history has shown that you can not censor and oppress people forever. some day they will rise and fuck you up.

Can you feel it? In the air that electricity? That my friend is the fury of the awakened Saxon. It does not come often, rare as a crystal and cold as ice. What a time to be alive, to get to witness it's rise, and soon, so very soon, the crescendo of it's fury, the dam breaking and the glacial charging across the land laying waste to all in it's path. Get off the tracks, the white train is coming.

Lawyers are probably lining up right now...just to become famous.

Most lawyers can't handle internet related cases, and these megacorps are quick to be all like "ooooh we're a private corporation and just doing it because social justice is somehow related to profit! It's totally not that we're colluding with the Stalinists on the left to violate everyone's rights and take over everything!"

How about different angle.

History has shown that no matter how much free speech you get enjoy, censorship will triumph again

Antitrust laws need to be applied to these Stalinist megacorps, along with a new law to protect American civil rights on the internet against intentional political collusion to censor.

Almost feels like a consorted effort between govt and corporations to expand the power of the federal govt.

Well, keep on being mysterious then. We're patient, like the sea. Never tiring, never relenting. We are waiting.

Because if people knew more someone could squash it in its infancy.

There are several alternatives to the standard DNS system, for instance: <https://www.opennic.org/>
<https://zeronet.io/> <https://namecoin.org/>

I'd suggest Voat, Gab, Minds, etc to get an alternative URL from <https://www.opennic.org/> just in case their regular domain is hijacked by these retards and to consider <https://bitmitigate.com/> as an alternative to CloudFlare which has proven to be untrustworthy.

Yes, OpenNIC is the way to go - it's really easy to setup, it supports DNSSEC, it has a lot of servers, and Namecoin resolution.

Opennic also supports the Namecoin domains, it's probably the easiest for people to get started with.

True, it is the easiest to set up... the only concern i have with OpenNic is that it is still somehow centralized, there is still people behind it that might get blackmailed or that might not believe in freedom of speech and start banning domains they don't agree with... but as a backup/emergency plan i think it is good enough.

This is disgusting that we're even accepting these DNS companies doing this as part and parcel.

How hard woul it be to download an app that had a records listed on it instead of paying some arsehe cuck for authoritative servers??

- permalink

[\[-\] jxfaith](#) 1 points (+1|-0) ago

Same problem though. Private entity publishing the list. In this case, the App owner.

Why do I feel like we are powerless.

- permalink

[\[-\] KingoftheMolePeople](#) 4 points (+4|-0) ago

you are not powerless. They want you to feel that way. You are not. Because it isnt just You. It is Us. And We are not powerless. We have great power. You are not powerless. The further we are pushed the greater the reaction will be. We are not powerless. And we are rising.
